

GERMANS IN ALL-NIGHT BATTLE RECAPTURE PORTION OF FLEURY

By CHARLES E. BERTOLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 4.—The battle of Verdun is again being fought with all the fury that characterized its inception last in February.

The fighting is especially violent east of the Meuse, where the Germans have succeeded in capturing the southern part of the village of Fleury.

The French War Office in its communication today stated that German attacks were made all night long against the French positions in Fleury-Thiaumont line, and that all were repulsed.

Down found the Crown Prince still harrying his German legions against the French positions, but the assaults broke to pieces before the iron defense of the French soldiers.

After occupying the southern part of Fleury, Germans tried to sweep into the northern and of the village, but were driven back by the guns of the French positions, where the French had taken refuge and transformed them into fortresses.

While the infantry rains were pouring back and forth around Fleury and Thiaumont, a great artillery duel was in progress further to the east on the line of Chapelle and Chenev. The war office characterized this duel with big guns as being particularly severe.

ATTACK ALL NIGHT.
The text of the official communication followed:

"On the right bank of the Meuse, the battle continues on the Thiaumont-Fleury front, which the Germans attacked all night with extreme violence. Numerous counter attacks with great forces against our positions on the edge of the Thiaumont work were repulsed with serious losses for the enemy.

"Our troops in the course of the battle succeeded in capturing a work, which we afterward evacuated under a powerful bombardment, leaving back nearly prisoners taken by us in this action.

"In the region of Fleury, the combats have been less violent. The Germans have multiplied their counterattacks against the village, each preceded by an intense artillery bombardment. After many unsuccessful attempts the Germans gained a foothold in the southern section of Fleury, where the combat continues until the morning. Efforts to dislodge them from the station occupied south-east of the village were shattered by the resistance of our troops.

ATTACK IN THE VONKERS.
"The enemy likewise attacked during the night our new positions east of Vacherauville. He succeeded only in suffering heavy losses. In the region of Vaux-Chapelle and Lechateau, there was a very sharp artillery duel.

"In the Vosges at 10 a. m. yesterday, the enemy launched on the Chapelle-aux-Lacs an attack which he managed before it was able to reach our lines.

"The night was comparatively calm on the front of the front.

"On the night of August 3 one of our air squadrons dropped eight shells of large calibre on the railway station at Noyen and on a munition factory. Fifty shells were thrown by another squadron on railway stations and camps of the enemy in the Somme region.

WAR SUMMARY

Fighting as violent as any which that battle-scarred ground has seen has broken out on the Verdun front.

On the third day of the fighting the French captured the town of Fleury, northwest of Fort Souville and a short distance away.

Today the French officially admit that the Germans recaptured the southern part of the village. The French in the north are thus partially cut off. The French say the German assaults today are more violent than at any time since the beginning of the attacks in February.

There was brisk activity about the Picardy front today, but at no point did any important results ensue.

The allies delivered a sustained bombardment of such proportions that the Germans expected a general attack. They replied by leveling a barrage fire behind the front-line trenches in Longueval and elsewhere.

Whether or not this fire checked an attack which had been planned, there was no general assault on the German lines.

Each side made slight gains here and there—none sufficiently important to appear on the map, and none in any way affecting the general situation.

The great Russian attack on the Stokhod line, made without artillery preparation, and in which wave after wave of Russians threw themselves against the machine guns of the Teutons, has failed. It made no change of even minor importance in the battle line; and it has ceased. Save for minor engagements here and there, the Russian front was quiet today.

The Russians have been within twenty miles of Kovel for a month; they are no nearer now. They are still fifty-five miles from Lemberg.

The German and Austrian submarines appear to be resuming their warfare against merchant craft on a considerable scale. . . . And the Deutschland seems to have got safely away.

BRITISH GAIN TO THE WEST OF POZIERES

By SYDNEY B. CAYE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Aug. 4.—A gain for the British west of Pozieres in the front between the Aisne and Somme Rivers is recorded in the official statement issued by the British War Office this afternoon.

North of Bazentin le Petit and eastward of Delville wood some German prisoners were captured in minor actions.

"The War Office report follows: "During last night, as the result of minor operations west of Pozieres, we gained ground. There was local fighting north of Bazentin le Petit and northward of Delville wood, in which we captured a few prisoners."

"There was considerable artillery duelling on various portions of the British front."

"A raiding party destroyed a mine shaft in the German line. Near the Ypres-Comines road we expended a small mine in the enemy's trenches, occupying the crater of Pozieres in the Albert-Bapaume road. Bazentin le Petit and Delville wood are east of Pozieres."

French Driven Out of Captured Positions at Verdun, Berlin States

The official report follows:

"Was front-Artillery activity grew to great intensity north of the Aisne and continued with undiminished violence between the Aisne and the Somme. Strong attacks by the enemy north of Villers, southwest of Guillemeut and north of Moncau farm were repulsed."

"South of the Somme a night attack by the French at Bazentin failed."

"Last night the French succeeded in taking possession of our position at the village of Fleury and south of Thiaumont work, but our counter attack, this morning put us in complete possession again."

"We occupied Fleury and the trenches west and northwest of the village."

"Heavy attacks northwest of Thiaumont work and against our positions in Chaptin wood and on the heights were repulsed with heavy loss. The situation on that portion of the front is about the same now as it was before the French attack."

NORMAN PRINCE BAGS TEUTON BALLOON

Paris, Aug. 4.—Norman Prince, the Boston youth with the French army as an aviator, has brought down one of the steepest observation balloons, which are nicknamed "sausage," because of their shape.

Prince had his swift fighting machine fitted with a special weapon to be employed against these balloons. He fired at the gas bag at about 100 yards range and the "sausage" immediately disappeared in a cloud of smoke.

Prince is unaware of the fate of the observer. They have parachutes, and sometimes are able to escape.

CARRANZA STATE ACCUSES THE S. DEPARTMENT OF LOSING PAID

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A speedy settlement of all the differences existing between the de facto government of Mexico and the United States was seen by officials here today, following the delivery to the State Department of General Carranza's reply to this government's note of July 28.

Carranza has appointed the Mexicans to serve on the joint commission, which will be given the work of settling the differences between the two countries. The note also states that Eliseo Arredondo, ambassador designate here, has been empowered to treat with the State Department regarding the place and time of the commission's meeting.

NOT DIRECT ANSWER.
The personal of the United States that the powers of the commission be such that it could deal with all problems affecting the two countries was not directly answered. The note states the Mexicans appointed to the solution of the points mentioned in the previous note.

Officials took this to mean that the commission could take up other things if it deemed it best to do so. The note did not mention the withdrawal of the American troops. The note also states that Carranza has appointed the Mexicans to serve on the joint commission, which will be given the work of settling the differences between the two countries. The note also states that Eliseo Arredondo, ambassador designate here, has been empowered to treat with the State Department regarding the place and time of the commission's meeting.

TEXT OF NOTE.
Mr. Secretary:

In due reply to the courteous note of the Department of State, dated July 25, 1916, I have the honor to say to your excellency that the first chief of the Constitutional army, in charge of the executive power of the Mexican republic, consulates himself upon the laudable efforts of the American government to arrive at a solution of existing difficulties between the two countries, and to that effect considering it of the greatest importance that a prompt decision be reached of the points mentioned in the previous note of the Mexican government, dated July 1st, has seen fit to appoint at once a commission of three persons, constituted by Licenciado Luis Cabrera, Engineer Ignacio Fonillas and Engineer Alberto J. Pani, to whom instructions have been given to devote their entire energies to the solution of the points mentioned in the previous note of this department.

Licenciado Luis Cabrera has been authorized to treat with the Department of State the matters of detail relative to the place and date of the meeting of the commission of the government of the United States in order to commence their labors.

I reiterate to your excellency the assurance of my highest consideration. (Signed)

C. AGUILAR,
Secretary of Foreign Relations.

AND INSTEAD
AND WITH A desire
TO IN SOME way
GAIN THE respect
OF THE young man
I PURCHASED quantities
OF EDIBLES
WHICH I showed

YE TOWNE GOSSIP

ON THURSDAY
I WENT again
TO THE ball game
AND HAVING snatched myself
COMFORTABLE
WAS SOON joined
BY A young man,
COATLESS
AND HATLESS,
WHO REAR his score card
AT VARIOUS angles
UNTIL I spoke
TO THE INCONVENIENCE
I WAS causing him,
AND HELD HIM
SO HE might read it
BY KEEPING his head
IN A direct line
WITH HIS vertebrae
AND SO WE were
WHEN THE game began.
AND I said:
"IT'S THE first time
I'VE SEEN Rudolph play."
AND HE
"YOU'RE SEEING a lot
"FOR YOUR money."
"HE ain't young."
AND WHILE usually
I TALK quite freely
TO EVERYBODY
ABOUT ME
AT A ball game
I CEASED when
TO VOLUNTEER
ANY INFORMATION
ABOUT MYSELF
OR THE players,
AND INSTEAD
AND WITH A desire
TO IN SOME way
GAIN THE respect

Semi-Annual CLEARANCE

of Our Entire Stock of
Model Clothes
For Men and
Young Men

If you have been reading the announcements being made now-days by the vast majority of clothing merchants in this as well as other cities, you will note the half-hearted tone of their clearance or mark-down sales. Fact is, very few regular stocks have been reduced. The rising markets have side-tracked the legitimate price cutting.

Here there has been no deviation from the fixed policy. No attempt to avoid the usual semi-annual reductions through-out the assortments. No cutting corners or buying jobs for sale purposes.

The entire stock has been reduced as follows:

- $15.00 Grades Now $12.50
- $20.00 Grades Now $14.50
- $22.50 Grades Now $16.50
- $25.00 Grades Now $18.50

Higher-Priced Grades
Reduced Proportionately

STATE R. R. NEEDS STRIKE

The Chelsea division of the Bay State Railway may be tied up by a strike during the next twenty-four hours as the result of a vote taken among 435 employees at meetings in South Hill, Chelsea, today.

The union claim that C. W. Metcalf, a conductor, was discharged without first being given a hearing as provided for in the agreement made some time ago between the union and the company.

VOTE IN CHANDLER.
The day employees, 373 in number, gathered in Eagle Hall and after several speeches voted unanimously to strike. Shortly after midnight, 335 of the night men gathered in the same hall, after cheering over an hour the action of the day men they also unanimously voted to strike.

As soon as the result of the vote was announced President James M. O'Brien of Local 40, who presided at the meeting, got to work. W. D. Mahon of New York, national president of the carmen, in order to secure release for the strike.

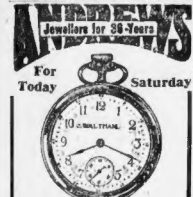

Owing to the fact that President Mahon is handling the strike situation away from New York, it is probable he will personally be unable to come to Boston. He will send a member of the executive board to represent him.

With the resources of the Sun-Laffan News Bureau now added to the International News Service, with alert correspondents in every news centre in the world, with the full foreign news service of the London Daily Telegraph and the Paris Matin; also that of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger (through William Bayard Hale, our special correspondent in Germany); with all the special news features of the Hearst newspapers, the International News Service has entered on a career of even wider usefulness as a news distributor to the American people.

There are now only TWO IMPORTANT news distributing associations—namely, the INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE and the Associated Press—with the International News Service having the additional advantage of carrying the best features in the United States.

TRINITY CHURCH FILLED WITH MOURNERS FOR EBEN D. JORDAN

The diverse interests which the late Eben D. Jordan, merchant prince, philanthropist and patron of art and music, shared with Boston and its citizens, were indicated by the representative gathering of mourners at his funeral in Trinity Church, Cooper square, this afternoon.

The service began at 2 o'clock and was conducted by the Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity.

When the service began the church was filled. Men and women from many walks of life were there. Mercantile life, in Boston, where Mr. Jordan was such a prominent figure, banking interests, musical art and cash credits and other phases of business and society were represented in the throng.

PLACES AT HALF-MAST.
Not only were flags lowered to half-mast on many business houses, but also, by order of Mayor Curley, they were thus lowered on all city buildings today in honor of Mr. Jordan.

The same wide business and social interests which were represented in person at the service were likewise represented in the array of flowers.

After the service, these flowers were sent to the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline, the City Hospital and the Jordan patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

On the list, signed a cross of white lilies and orchids, sent by Mrs.

Arthur Foster, Mr. Jordan's sister who lives in England.

The Jordan Marsh Company store was closed all day today and many of the stores of Boston remained closed during the time of the funeral, from 2 until 5 o'clock.

H. B. Simons, summer organist of Trinity Church, played during the service. He was assisted by Wallace Goodrich, long the organist of the church and who for many years was closely associated with Eben D. Jordan in the New England Conservatory of Music, of which Mr. Jordan was at one time the president.

A vested choir of seven men rendered the hymn sung for the service. They sang the hymn, "Abide With Me," and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

BEARERS ARE EMPLOYEES.
The bearers, all employees of the Jordan Marsh Company, were Thomas P. Lockner, George L. Swasey, A. Eugene Plimley, George L. Snyder, John P. Riley, Sidney S. Campbell, Joseph Ryan and Walter London.

The list of honorary pallbearers included General Francis Peabody, Jr., W. F. Warren and George W. Milton, the two vice-presidents of the Jordan Marsh Company; John Hurd Hutchins, Colonel H. E. Russell, Richard M. Saltonstall, Parkman H. Haven, Arthur P. Gushnet, and Edward P. Converse, formerly the vice-president of the company; Charles H. Taylor, George W. Chadwick, director of the New England Conservatory of Music, and H. B. Kery and Theodore R. Hoyt, both of New York.

H. Nathan Hamilton was the chief mourner, and he was assisted by the following others: F. B. Crowninshield, John G. T. Rice and Frank C. Gifford.

The interment was in the Forest Hills Cemetery, and was private.

PLACES AT HALF-MAST.
As a tribute to the memory of Eben D. Jordan, flags on all the large department stores of the city and many of the other business houses were lowered to half-mast on Wednesday and remained so until after the funeral today.

Mayor James M. Curley's letter of condolence and sympathy to Mrs. Jordan, at West Manchester, was followed today by many others from prominent business men and others who were associated closely with Mr. Jordan during his lifetime.

All the employees of the store attended the funeral and occupied the gallery of the church. On the main floor below there were special reservations for these attaches of the store holding important positions.

MR. JORDAN'S CLOSE.
Among the stores that were closed during the funeral hours were Macy's, J. C. Parker Company, E. T. Satterly Company, C. F. Harvey Company, W. & A. Bacon Company, Gilchrist Company, H. H. White Company, Houghton & Dutton, Chandler & Company, Inc., Meyer Johnson & Company, L. P. Hollister & Company, Mass. Book Company, The Thrasher Bros. Silk Store, Chandler's Corner Store, C. J. Fisher, Inc., William Plimley's Sons Company, Shepard Norwell Company, Conner & Company, H. Stearns Company, Wolf's "My Children," Tremont Store, Inc., A. Shuman & Co., and J. C. Whitney Company.

These stores closed in response to the action taken at the meeting of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

BLUE-EYED BABY BOY FOUND AT NANTASKET

The police are today trying to find the mother of a handsome, blue-eyed baby boy abandoned at Nantasket beach.

"Butter," at the officers at the Metropolitan police station entrusted the baby, who meanwhile has been cared for at the Chardon Street Home, Boston.

The baby is about three months old. Being contentedly, he was found by some women picnickers on the grassy shore of the beach, the busiest part of the beach.

WAS WELL DRESSED.
The women watched him for about two hours, thinking the mother was nearby, but finally called the attention of Patrolman J. P. McDowell, who took the baby to the station.

The baby was well nourished and dressed. He is light complexioned, with light hair and blue eyes. He wore a long white dress, white woolen sweater, white woolen socks and white hair cap.

At the station he received the motherly care of Mrs. Abner, the matron. When found, he was not hungry but later indicated that his appetite was keen and was given a bottle of milk.

NO CLUE TO IDENTITY.
No clue to the baby's identity was found. The police say the baby's appearance and dress indicate that he has been well taken care of.

The place where the baby was found is one of the most conspicuous on the beach. There must have been hundreds of persons about, but so far no police have been unable to find anyone who saw the baby placed on the grass.

DAWSON, HEAD OF ARBORETUM, DIES SUDDENLY

Jackman Thornton Dawson, superintendent of the Arnold Arboretum, died at his home in Jamaica Plain, Mass., last Sunday, after a long illness.

He was in his seventy-fifth year and was respected by the members of his profession as one of the world's greatest horticulturists. He was a ward of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having been appointed by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for having contributed most for the advancement of horticulture during that year. His recent achievements was the production of a new and beautiful rose which he named for Professor Russell, director of the arboretum.

Loaf of Bread Guides to Body of Man in Lake

Starbridge, Aug. 4.—The body of Dallas Gaudier of Southbridge, who was drowned in Cedar Lake, Starbridge, last Sunday, was recovered by Joseph Gaudier of Southbridge, who had been dragging the lake.

Gaudier said he rowed to the place where he thought the man was drowned and put a loaf of stale bread on the water. It floated for a while and then went down.

"Then I knew," said Gaudier, "that the body was near by and after a few minutes searching with grapple lines I found it. This is the way I found another drowned man three years ago."

Live Wires Drop in Lexington and Endanger Lives

Lexington, Aug. 4.—Much excited men were created, several persons had their lives endangered and street traffic was delayed here when two high voltage electric wires, each carrying 6000 volts, fell into Massachussetts avenue, opposite the residence of Mrs. Francis P. Kendall.

Patrick J. Moxley of Waltham street, Lexington, was driving a car along the avenue when the wires fell near him, and an automobile in which several persons were riding also passed as the wires fell, so that the wires barely missed hitting the machine.

Cars on the Middlesex and Boston streets, however, were delayed by the wires while they stuck to the tracks and men with sticks to their hands carefully held the wires back while the wires passed. An emergency crew from the Edison Electric Illuminating Company cleared the wires away.

DAUGHTER CUT OFF IN WILL WITH $1

Because her daughter and her grandson never assisted her when she needed friendship and love, Mrs. Maria Howard, who died July 26 in Cambridge, provided in her will, which has been filed in the Probate Court, that her daughter, Mrs. Lucy Howard of England, shall receive but $1 "in lawful money." Nothing is left to the grandson, Norman Howard, so he will be in spring.

The will dated June 8, 1911, bequeathed $100 to Mary Jordan of Haverhill, a distant relative, and left the residue of the estate to John Howard of Cambridge. An affidavit dated January 15, 1915, provides that the residue shall be divided between the two.

Cutshaw Bunts and Gets Clean Two-Base Drive

BROOKLYN, Aug. 4.—George Cutshaw, the Dodgers' second baseman, scored one of the strangest two-base hits in the history of the baseball game during the seventh inning of the Pirates-Dodgers game.

With Dabbert on first and Wheat on second, Cutshaw bunted, attempting to sacrifice. The ball rolled toward third, the Pirates third baseman, and just as he was about to pick it up, it struck some obstruction.

"The ball promptly bounced over third's head, and before it could be fielded, Cutshaw was on second. Wheat on third and Dabbert had scored."

Big Card for Revere Bike Track

The American and French motor-paced teams, the former composed of George Wiley and Clarence Carman and the latter embracing Leon Didier and Georges Seres, will resume their sensational duels at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night, when they clash in a forty-mile race behind the motors.

Race racing has furnished some of the greatest sport at the beach over this season and the demand for events of this kind has been so great that Manager Butler was forced to bow the wheel to his patrons.

YANKEES HOPEFUL.
In spite of the fact that they have been beaten in both battles with the Yankees team, Didier and Seres entertain hopes of reversing the decision tomorrow evening. In the past they have had much trouble in making satisfactory pickups, but constant practice has enabled them to better acquaint themselves with each other's style.

Second only to the motor-paced race in the point of interest will be the special unlimited pursuit race between Ned Chandler, the colored flyer, and Paul Suter of Switzerland, one of the most promising races at the beach. This pair had it out hot and heavy in the three-mile race Wednesday night, and it was then that Manager Butler conceived the idea of matching them up in a special event.

LINART CONFIDENT.
Victor Linart, who issued a sweeping challenge to every pacemaker at the beach the other day, received another reply to his bid yesterday, when Carman wired on from Philadelphia that he accepted Linart's challenge and has $100 to put against the pacemaker's money, saying the latter says the word. Seres was first to take up Linart, and it now looks very much as if Manager Butler would put all attention on the very near future. It is Linart's loss that he can whip any pacemaker in the world if given Merin as pacer.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.
It behooves us today to refrain from mentioning, either pro or con, anything concerning the subject at hand. Let us discuss Mexico, Hughes and Fairbanks.

Let us put on our overcoats and our canyons, and talk about the presidential campaign, the candidate now running for the presidency of the United States.

Going over the subject with a prominent politician the other day, I was told that the subject of the presidential campaign was not a subject to be discussed in the press.

"It is hard to tell at this time," he said, "but it seems to me that the Sox have a good chance to win. Let us leave them alone as long as they are longer next time."

At the weather were only called as the presidential campaign, we'd all be wearing overcoats.

Temperature is a peculiar animal. On the fourth of July in the heart of Sahara Freddie Webb would have been on the first of January at the North Pole Johnny Rivers would be hot-headed. And Tom Jones can shoot hot air in any climate.

"NEAR RIOT AT BIKE RACES"

We will be a perfectly good Canadian that some fan heard what a little and handsome answerer said.

We have often wondered why Toronto was for long in hot weather. They could use some long just as well.

McAuley-Wood for the Scots' Games

McAuley of Victoria, Canada, and "Abbie" Wood of Guelph, Ontario, are in town for their appearance in the big Scotch athletic games at Chalmers Grove, Saturday. They were the guests of their numerous Canadian friends, who were perfectly confident that they will run away with the big honors in the games.

McAuley will start from scratch, along with Jimmy Henigan of the Inverness Club, in the Caldonian, modified marathon road race, which will start from the State House promptly at 1:45, and will continue over the road to Caldonian Grove, a distance of thirteen and one-half miles.

"Abbie" Wood also expects to give a good account of himself in the five-mile American professional championship race.

At the weather were only called as the presidential campaign, we'd all be wearing overcoats.

NEW YORK RING TALK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Because of the accident in which he caused the death of a young boy Wednesday, Willie Smith, his manager, has asked Manager Jimmie Johnson of Madison Square Garden to postpone his bout scheduled for Friday night with Joe Welling of Chicago. The request was granted, but no future date has been named.

ABLY KENNEDY WILL AGGUE JOE JACKSON

ABLY KENNEDY will agguise Joe Jackson and fight him for the championship, at the New Polo Club tonight.

TYGERS' NEW CATCHER.
Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4.—Ed Spencer, catcher of the Vernon (California Coast League) team, states he has accepted an offer from the Detroit Tigers and probably will leave next week to join the team.

Mixed Bouts on Tonight's Bill at C. A. C.

"Fighting" Al Nelson of Manchester, N. H., and Carl Herz, the Washington bruiser, clash in the two-round wind-up event on tonight's Commercial A. C. card. Herz has shown to have fair advantage in local fights the past year, while Nelson comes to town heralded as an efficient fighter.

Mark Spencer, another colored boy, meets "Toney" Green of Cambridge in the eight-round semi-windup, while Louis Leonard and Johnny O'Brien and Pat Owens and Ray Partridge are slated to appear in the two-rounders.

Charles of thirteen and one-half miles.

"Abbie" Wood also expects to give a good account of himself in the five-mile American professional championship race.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

On Saturday at the Columbus Avenue playgrounds, the H. B. Faneu team will play against the team of E. B. George. Faneu has a record of nine victories out of sixteen games, defeating nine of the best amateur teams in New England.

Fine Field Meets in 2:15 Trot at Holyoke

Holyoke, Aug. 4.—Today's feature race at Williamstown Park is the 2:15 trot, in which Koroni, Carnahan and several other good ones are slated to start. Andy Ashland looks best in the 2:15 pace. The 2:25 trot for a purse of $100 completes the program.

Yesterday's racing was intensely interesting. Birdie Alroy, after winning the first heat, "broke" during the running of the following heat and was disqualified. Dr. Kilbourne, Joe Balducci's recent purchase, was thought to be much the best in the 5:17 trot, but constant breaks spoiled his chances. After a hard fought spectacular race in the 2:25 trot, Ballantine P. landed first money.

A Very Good Reason for Not Being Hostile

Here Is a Meddlesome Editor, Indeed

What Should Be Done to Suppress Him? What Dreadful Thing May We Expect Next?

Copyright, 1916, Rex Company

PUT your hand upon your mouth—as poor old Job did—for you are to be surprised.

In Topeka, Kansas, lives an editor named Frank P. MacLennan. His paper is the Topeka State Journal—one of the big papers of the West. Many of the men and women of Kansas read it, respect it, and expect—with good reason—that it will defend their interests.

That is the preface—here is the sad story:

Before the trouble began, the banks of Topeka—not then united—paid two and one-half per cent. interest on money deposited by the county and two per cent. on money deposited by the city.

Arose the question—which bank should have the pleasure of holding money of the School Board, and lending it to the farmers at six per cent. or more?

The banks, absent-minded for a moment, began bidding among themselves and offered three per cent. for the School Board money.

Thereupon Frank P. MacLennan, through his newspaper, said to the banks: "You make it evident that you can afford to pay three per cent. for public money, and you should pay that for ALL THE PUBLIC MONEY."

"You should pay three per cent. for all the CITY money on which you now pay two per cent. and three per cent. for the COUNTY money on which you now pay two and one-half per cent."

Do not worry or fear that the bankers allowed such anarchy to go unrebuked.

They formed a combination, and decided—can you possibly blame them?—that MacLennan and his newspaper must be taught to respect things holy.

The banks, now united, sent a uniform message to the County Commissioners saying that they would thereafter pay two per cent. only for county money, whereas they had been paying two and one-half per cent. to the county, and that they would pay no more than two per cent. for any public funds.

The idea was that the public would say to MacLennan, "NOW see what you have done by interfering with these good bankers. We are to get only two per cent. now where we used to get two and a half on county money. Your name is Rascal."

An ordinary editor, under those circumstances, having been officially notified that organized money disapproved of him, would have sat down on a pile of ashes and put some of the ashes on his head.

Mr. MacLennan did not do that.

This is what he DID:

He rented a first-class banking house. He engaged as cashier the retiring State Treasurer, who knows a good deal about public funds.

He organized a capital as big as that of any bank in Topeka.

He will offer a fair rate of interest for the public deposits, which average about six hundred thousand dollars a day; he is going to lend money to his readers in Kansas at a reasonable rate to pay overhead charges and a fair profit.

What do you think of an editor like that?

The rack, the thumbscrew, have vanished—the auto da fe has been replaced by the auto da Ford.

Virtuous finance planned to punish this editor, to fasten him for life in the public pillory, as one who chopped half of one per cent. off interest on the county funds.

It planned to bring down upon him public execration, and make him a warning to those that meddle with things above them—just as the chicken hawk nailed to the barn door is a warning to birds that meddle with the chickens below them.

Instead of which, as you might say, this editor plots to give three per cent. on public funds instead of two per cent. He plans to lend money to individual citizens cheaper than they have ever been able to borrow it before—and to make a modest profit for himself as well.

"Ichabod," say the bankers. Can you blame them?

Eben D. Jordan

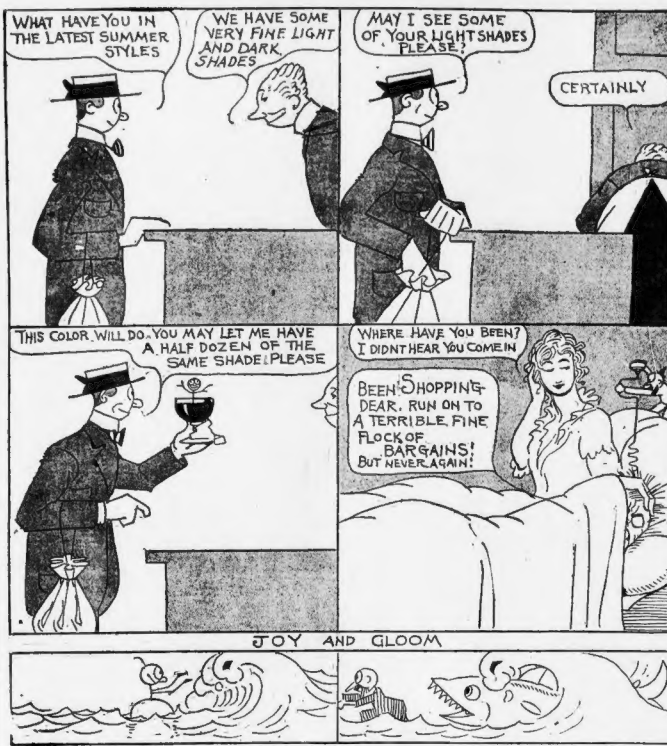

EBBEN D. JORDAN is buried today. His death removed from our midst the head of one of the largest business houses in America and a man whose promotion of one of the great arts of civilization was self-sacrificing.

His support of grand opera and music generally has done a great deal for Boston, because it has helped to make us metropolitan in the advantages we can offer to the stranger and to our own citizens.

The indirect good of such contributions as Mr. Jordan made cannot be measured exactly, but we all know that it was very great.

The Rising Poet

By William F. Kirk

YOUNG Percival Vail came home from Yale to summer upon the farm. It was noised around that the world had found a poet of mystic charm. For he wrote blank verse as good as a hearse. And his old dad said when the lines he read: "It's the blankest I ever see!"

BUT work is work, and the men that shirk Can't live on a far, m, m, much! So the young bard's back and a horsewhip black Proceeded to get in touch. Now the singer is still and his song's sweet thrill Is lost to the world, who knows? Young Percival Vail wrote verse at Yale. But his dad is teaching him prose.

"It was full of hints about light that glints Over the rivers in Pluto's caves; It spoke of deeps where the Lost Love sleeps In a grotto 'neath waning waves. It told of wee and the overbrow Of ghastly demon that reel, And the old man said as he scratched his head: "It hardly seems possible!"

The Final Outlook for Paralysis Victims

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

WHILE as they are separated in time of life, there is a curious resemblance in some respects between infantile paralysis and the common paralysis, or "stroke," of second childhood.

Both are due to blocking or rupture of the blood vessels supplying a limited area, or centre, in the nervous system. Both come on suddenly—"hot" paralysis within a few minutes or hours, "young" paralysis within two or three hours, ten or twelve at the outside. Both recover very slowly, and for the same reason that large "chunks" of the nerve centres have been started to decay by the cutting off of their food supply through the blood vessels, and it is a long and tortuous process to either re-grow them from such rootlets and fragments as are left or else educate other centres to take their place. In both it is very difficult to prophesy the result in any particular case, for it is extremely uncertain—both ways from the centre, so to speak.

Quite mild cases will sometimes make little or no improvement, while badly disabled ones will often make a really surprising recovery. On the whole, however, considering the sudden and striking nature of the paralysis and the seriousness of the damage done to the spinal cord, infantile paralysis falls far short of living up to the terror which its attack inspires. Actually, it is not half as dangerous a disease as measles or whooping cough, but the dramatic character and strangeness of the origin which it produces and the long years afterward which its little victims live to exhibit them make a powerful impression upon our imagination.

So far as the whole community is concerned, infantile paralysis, in spite of the pitious suffering which it inflicts, and our well-nigh helpless inability to control it, actually falls below the one in a thousand risk; for, as Dr. Emerson has pointed out, out of New York's 1,600,000 children, only 2,600 have so far developed the disease, or only one in 600, and less than 400, or about one in 5,000, have died of it within a month, while measles causes nearly four times as many deaths in New York every winter without attracting any attention at all.

Of course, the epidemic is not over yet, but as the most extensive one anywhere on record, of 1917, reached only 2,600 cases, with less than 200 deaths, and outside of that, 875 to 100 cases have always been regarded as a large epidemic.

It would be against all probabilities if this present outbreak should pass the 5,000 mark, which would mean only one death in every 2,600 children. But what of the more numerous and, in the long run, almost more serious results of the disease other than the immediate fatality? So far as a definite statement of probability can be made about a disease so uncertain and unreluctant in its results, the doubt is the rough probable outcome.

About one-fourth of all cases which recover will be practically cured, about one-half will have permanent lameness in one or more limbs or joints, but by intelligent re-education of the muscles, and training for special occupations, be practically able-bodied and 80 to 90 per cent. efficient, while one-fourth will probably be more or less seriously crippled for life.

Dr. Parkhurst's Article

In Woman's Objection to Suggestion That She Is in Any Part Animal—And on a Plea for Rights of Sharks from a Very Unexpected Quarter

By Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst

IT is one of the pleasures and perquisites incident to addressing the public upon matters of common practical interest that so many rejoinders come back to the writer; sometimes, in fact very often, in the shape of sharp criticism; sometimes in the form of inquiry, and then occasionally in the way of kindly approval. If the readers receive as much advantage from the articles as their author derives from what comes to him from the readers in return, it is worth his while to write them.

A couple of weeks since there came to me a letter from a lady who was seriously considering the question of adopting vegetarianism, and asking my advice upon the matter. She was so evidently in earnest that I returned to her a carefully written note in reply, to this effect, that there are two sides to a person's nature, the animal and the spiritual; that on the one side she is an animal in the same way that a dog is an animal, and that, therefore, it is reasonable to suppose that if meat is adapted to the constitution of a dog, it must be similarly adapted to the nature of the human being, herself included.

To this I have just received the following reply, which seemed to indicate that my anti-vegetarianism had had the unfortunate effect of developing her into a determined vegetarian.

Here is the letter:

Objects to Intimation That She Is in Any Part Animal

"Dear Mr. Parkhurst: Perhaps you are interested to know whether I decided to become a vegetarian or not after receiving your letter. Then I will tell you that I decided in favor of vegetarianism for the reason that I absolutely refuse to believe that one side of my being is as much animal as the dog. Now, Dr. Parkhurst, you show you are not partly animal and I am proud to say I am not. For indeed if I knew what about me was animal I would mummify and crush it till it was dead."

For any one to say that he is in part animal shows an indifference as to whether or not he is purely spiritual. I am not indifferent to that, and I am not partly animal. How I wish you would show me wherein I am animal, since you don't have to know me to do that. Please write me again, will you?"

Now that is written by an honest woman who is sincere enough to append her name and address, a feature that is lacking in what is sent me by many of my correspondents. I am particularly pleased to deal with people who have no much respect for themselves and for their opinion as to be willing to put their names to it. If, therefore, I may use this article as a medium of reply I would like to say to her: I appreciate your disposition to put the emphasis upon the spiritual side of your nature. It would be well if all had the same disposition. And yet you will not deny that you have a body. If you had not you would not need even vegetables, to say nothing of meat. Your body comprises head, hands, feet, heart, stomach, lungs, liver, etc.

Now the dog has exactly those same elements and it is the possession of those elements that constitutes him to be an animal. And if you possess the same elements that constitute him to be an animal how can you say that they do not constitute you to be an animal? I am not saying that you are a brute. That is another matter, and I suspect you have confounded the two words. A brute has not a conscience, and you have, and you are therefore a human. The dog is not a person.

Even the physical nature of a dog, but it is physical all the same and is made out of the same elements as the dog's, and operating by the same organs of respiration, circulation and digestion. You say "I am not an animal." I am, because I have the same parts and organs as the animal. The dog is a brute animal; you and I are human animals. The human part we feed upon truth; the animal part upon vegetables and meat, perhaps.

Plea in Behalf of Sharks Comes from Very Unexpected Quarter

A PLEA in behalf of the sharks comes from an unexpected quarter and will bring joy to the heart of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is usual for journalists and magazine writers to treat members of the brute kingdom with undignified grotesqueness and to deny them all rights except the right to be slaughtered. The author who has given me a text for this article reverses the usual policy of treatment and allows to brutes—to sharks in particular—not only inherent rights, but rights that are in some respect anterior and superior to those of man.

Probably he has never been bitten by a shark. Had he been he would have pronounced a prejudiced judgment upon the animal. It is just because he has never been the victim of such an experience that he is able to do justice to the monster and hold the scales of justice with a steady hand.

The human race has not altogether outgrown its thirst for blood. It has not been so many thousands of years since, as one author says, "our ancestors hung by their tails from the trees," as altogether to cure us of our inherited sanguinary temperament. We may indulge in tenderhearted platitudes touching God's four-footed creatures, but that will not necessarily prevent our attending a bullfight if we happen to be in Mexico or Spain.

A gentle-spirited friend of mine once entertained the author of my Sunday school with stereoscopic views of what he had himself witnessed in the gory arena at Madrid. The sharks have the same right to the sea that we have to the land, and if people do not want to be eaten by them let them keep out of the water. One sad effect of civilization is that it breeds contempt for inferior orders of life, animal or human. The Indians killed them, in pursuance of the policy that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian"; and the Americans, so far as I have heard, have never, except in individual instances, repented of our national inhumanity; at least there has been no conspicuous exhibit of "fruits meet for repentance."

The tone of civilization harmonizes with the doctrine of Mr. Darwin, that we strike our roots into the moldering bones of our ancestors. Man is a sort of jaguar that goes crushing its way over whatever withstands its progress. It is a pity that we do not learn to be at the same time both civilized and humane.

Large Achievement to Remind People of Dignity Attached to Brute

It will be a large achievement of the anti-cruelty society when it has impressed people in general the conviction that there is a dignity attaching to the brute; that a fox-hunt is a libel on all who participate in it; that shooting birds from a trap puts the shooter at a lower level than the bird that is killed, and that heartlessly to deal with God's creatures is an insult to their Author.

Julius Seydlitz, late president of the American College, taught us that even the wanton destruction of a flower is an affront upon our personal worthiness.
